The most important personality attribute of the successful teacher is ability to create and foster a sense of vitality and enthusiasm for life. In this sense her attitude should be parental, that is to say, in the interest of health and virility.

Truancy from such a teacher would be rather unlikely.—Miriam Van Waters, Ph.D.

HOW TO SAVE A LIFE FROM DROWNING

With the advent of the summer season and an increase of week-end outings, it is once again called to the attention of the public that everyone should know how to save a life from drowning. One never knows when he will be faced with such an emergency and he should be ready for it.

The rules are simple and if followed in rhythmic precision as shown below it should be possible to restore breathing, provided no time is wasted.

No elaborate equipment is needed to save a life from drowning; all that is necessary is to know the "prone pressure method" and act immediately. This method is simple to learn, easy to apply and will not unduly tax the strength of the rescuer if he happens to be alone.

On removal from the water, patient should be placed stomach down on a flat surface, quickly opening the mouth to remove any foreign substance which might obstruct breathing—but not wasting any time in such preliminaries, as every moment is precious. One arm of patient should be bent at the elbow letting the head rest on this with face sidewise so that water may be dispelled from the lungs; the other arm should be stretched full length above.

Rescue measures should begin at once and continue rhythmically until natural breathing is established. This may take four or more hours. The procedure is as follows:

First—Kneel, and straddle the patient below the hips, placing hands on small of the back with fingers over the lowest ribs, tips of fingers just out of sight.

Second—With arms straight, while counting one, two, swing forward bearing weight on body firmly but not violently.

Third—Swing backwards while counting one, straightening up and thus relieving pressure—this allows air to be drawn into the lungs.

Fourth—Rest in this position for two counts.

Fifth—Repeat these movements rhythmically, forward and backward, without interruption, about twelve to fifteen a minute, until natural breathing is restored.

Sixth—Meanwhile, if assistance is at hand, a physician should be sent for, patient's tight clothing should be loosened at neck, chest or waist, and patient should be kept warm.

Patient should not be moved from this spot until he is breathing normally and then should not be allowed to get up but should be carried in a lying position to a place where he can be kept warm and receive expert medical attention.
